Coulter was responding to news that Senate Democrats are boycotting a Thursday vote on a budget proposal from House Republicans. "Democrats are boycotting it because they know their plan would fail," Coulter said. "The whole thing is an exercise in humiliating our president. If Republicans are going to block this, then why are Democrats sabotaging it? You're putting our country at risk." "We're getting rid of all the programs they're too afraid to repeal," she added. Rep. Nancy Pelosi (D-Calif.) said last week that Democrats won't support any part of a budget bill if they don't get to "put forward their policy agenda." "They've got no problem with making a deal with the devil, but they have principles that they're not going to compromise on," Coulter said. "Democrats agree with a woman in a banana suit, but they won't see her and they won't compromise," she said, referring to House Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi's (D-Calif.) "mock party." Coulter said there's nothing wrong with Democrats "having principles," but they need to compromise if they want to advance their agenda. "Why do we have to be a party that everybody loves? We're the party of Reagan. Reagan couldn't have got anything done if he wasn't the loveable guy. Why do we have to be this party of happy hippies?" she said. Coulter said there is nothing wrong with Democrats having principles, but they need to compromise if they want to advance their agenda. (Fox News) Coulter has been one of the most vocal and visible critics of the Obama administration and has drawn criticism for her controversial views on race. She wrote 2d92ce491b
