Thank you – by Julio Costa What is the solution of this problem? A: X-Plane has many different levels of validation. The shader validation checks what the shader can do. It sounds like you have a shader that doesn't conform to some standard. This would explain the error message. If you get this problem the first thing to try is to do a reinstall of X-Plane. A: Probably the most common shader file errors are if they are missing ending or the brackets are the wrong way around, or they only have one opening bracket, are missing the closing bracket, the declaration or the body of the shader, or the whole thing is missing brackets around. This can be viewed in the log file, you will normally find it here. You can also check for errors in the shader file, but this will be more troublesome as you need to understand the underlying system the file runs on. The shader system can be quite complex, and so I wouldn't bother with that unless it isn't working, as it will be more trouble to dig into. 1. Field of the Invention This invention relates to vacuum cleaners, and more particularly to vacuum cleaner nozzle assemblies. 2. Description of the Prior Art Vacuum cleaners of the type which include a plenum chamber formed of a flexible or collapsible bag or sheet which is formed to have a vacuum permeable bottom wall so as to suck in dust and dirt from a work area to be cleaned, are well known in the art. When using vacuum cleaners of this type, it is highly desirable for the bottom wall of the plenum chamber to be free of leaks so that air can be drawn in through the nozzle assembly at high velocity to entrain and remove particles from the work area in the plenum chamber and expel the dirt into the collection chamber. Moreover, it is necessary that the vacuum cleaner nozzle assemblies draw in a continuous and steady stream of air to prevent the bags from becoming clogged or the filling of the bag to the point of saturation. In vacuum cleaners heretofore available, the entire nozzle assembly was disposed through the opening formed in the bottom wall of the plenum chamber and was supported by spaced, displaceable supports which carried the nozzle assembly and any air moving means therein. When it is desired to remove or replace the nozzle assembly, the entire assembly, including the supports, must be withdrawn from the opening in the bottom wall of the plenum chamber so that the
