Any suggestions on how to achieve this.? Thank you in advance! A: Salesforce provides you with an API to encrypt emails attachments. However, these are just PGP or AES encrypted bytes. If the message is sent through the platform, they are already encrypted, but the attachment will be in clear text. Salesforce Messages API is available at this link. You can send encrypted attachments at the platform and the platform will send these encrypted attachments to the recipient. This API requires a token for authentication, and the token must be issued to the sender and be signed by Salesforce. You can generate the token here. However, do be aware that the token will not expire when it's expiry time is set, and it doesn't expire if the user doesn't use the message interface (like a custom button). Note that you cannot send encrypted attachments through the platform if the recipient doesn't have the Salesforce API installed on their device. A: One very easy way to protect all internal attachments is to simply drop them into a ZIP file and encrypt that ZIP file. The easiest way to accomplish this is using the Active window. Go to: Attachments / Email / Archives and select the archive ZIP file you just created. From there, compress the archive, choose the PGP option and then encrypt it. You will see the message from Salesforce below the encrypt/decrypt button that looks like this: Once you click on the encrypt button, you will see a pop up screen prompting you to enter your email address that you wish to send the encrypted email to. This is a great place to request password reset for users that you would like to be able to view the attachment. Once 3ef4e8ef8d
