but this doesn't change the legally valid ruling. Please note: The decision is in the public interest. It is available for consultation by the public and media in the Magistrates' Court lobby. Staff of Victoria Legal Aid will take copies on request (please see P. 10 of the transcript for details). The magistrate is the chief judicial officer of the court. His or her orders determine the "course and progress of the proceeding" (J.R. v. Williams [1974] 1 SCR 617, at p. 623). The aim of the magistrate's decision in this case is to impose the consequence of custody. He or she has a duty to take into account the recommendations of the probation services in making his or her decision. The court, or magistrates as they are sometimes called, has the power to order that anyone who commits an offence in their presence be taken into custody and held without bail (J.R. v. Williams [1974] 1 SCR 617, at p. 626).
There are some procedural matters to take into account in making custody orders.

Court Rules [2020] No.9 [2019] Rules of Magistrates' Court, pp. P. 7. 6.6 What court does an offender appear before? Custody is only granted by a court. Courts are the bodies responsible for criminal justice. They include the Supreme Court, district courts, appeal courts and magistrates' courts. The Supreme Court is responsible for issues of law and policy. 2d92ce491b
