This novel is the.Determination of 2,3,7,8-tetrachlorodibenzo-p-dioxin by competitive immunoassay with monoclonal antibodies. A competitive immunoassay was developed for the detection of 2,3,7,8-tetrachlorodibenzo-p-dioxin (TCDD) using monoclonal antibodies against TCDD. The antibodies were prepared by immunizing BALB/c mice with TCDD-BSA conjugate. The competitive immunoassay consisted of a conjugate of TCDD and tracer labeled with horseradish peroxidase, the specific antibodies (anti-TCDD) and an unlabeled competitor (TCDD). TCDD was determined using competitive antibody to TCDD in the presence of excess unlabeled TCDD. The immunoassay had a detection limit of 10(-12) M TCDD and measured accurately in the 10(-12) to 10(-9) M range. The cross-reactivities of dioxin congeners were less than or equal to 1% with the exception of 1,3,7,8-TCDD which had a cross-reactivity of 4.9%. The intra-assay and interassay coefficients of variation (CV) were less than or equal to 10.4 and 11.7%, respectively. The recoveries of TCDD from a standard solution and a waste water sample were greater than or equal to 91.8 and 84.8%, respectively. The suitability of the assay for the detection of TCDD in fat, breast milk and river water samples was evaluated by parallelism testing.al duine.
