Speaker of the House John Boehner is facing a growing wave of criticism from a left wing that he has failed to adequately tackle the big problems of the country. As much as 90% of the population may have been unhappy with the results of the November election, but the hard left and Democratic leadership were even more disenchanted, which prompted the massive protest on Sunday. According to the CBC, the left wing led by the Democratic Party has been frustrated with Mr Boehner since the speaker allowed the US House of Representatives to vote on lifting the debt ceiling without any strings attached.
