CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT: When I was a young boy, I used to dress up as different characters for Halloween. My first time as Jake Brigance, I had a squeaky voice. My second time, I was Julius Caesar. When I was a little older, I adopted the persona of a rebel working-class hero who spoke to the people. I was a regular John Galt. My daughter, of course, is actually a child socialist. She is the one who came up with the idea for this blog. We do a lot of traveling and we always meet with people in different states and cities to talk to them about the necessities of radical change in America. She now has her Master's degree from

Kid Man Kid Man is a 2006 American comedy-drama film written and directed by Wyatt Delgado, and starring Daniel Zovatto, Evan Duthie, Margaret Malandruccolo, Leslie Mann, and Michael Rapaport. The film depicts the upbringing of two boys who are separated from their parents at a young age and are raised by a group of foster care parents. The film also features several cameos and other secondary characters. Kid Man premiered at the 2006 Sundance Film Festival, where it received a Special Jury Prize for Breakthrough Filmmaking and Directing. The film was selected as the opening film of the 2006 EastSide Film Festival, where it received the Edan Kaiser Award for Best Screenplay, the Patricia Harris Award for Outstanding Achievement, and the FIPRESCI Award for Best Film. It was released theatrically in the United States on April 24, 2007. Plot Kid Man is set in 1980, when Kevin and Jason are 4 and 1 years old respectively. Their mother has just died from a drug overdose, and their father, who is unable to cope with the loss, leaves them and the two other children in the care of their grandmother. While waiting to be picked up by their father to return to their family, the two boys go to their grandmother's house. Their grandmother does not know what to do with the boys and leaves them with a group of social workers, who are reluctant to allow the children to leave with their father. At some point, Jason is separated from Kevin and taken to live in an orphanage. After arriving at the orphanage, the boys are discovered by Robert, who takes them under his wing. The boys grow up in Robert's care, and Robert slowly begins to teach them about life and about his own life experiences. While Robert's relationship with the boys evolves, Robert begins to make an effort to find their real father and reunite him with his children. As Robert's son, Kevin, grows older, he feels resentment towards his father for his decision to abandon his family. This gets increasingly difficult to handle and results in Robert's son, Jacob, committing suicide and leaving Kevin an orphan again. In an attempt to save his son from what had happened to his brother, Robert asks Kevin to move in with him. While Kevin goes on to a new life, Robert remains in their home and tries to get more information about Kevin's father from Kevin's brother, Michael. Kevin is eventually reunited with his
