The Italian-built partially welded steel cask design has been used on this project for more than 20 years with very satisfactory results. It offers an excellent combination of sound technological bases and a reliable design. The neck is factory finished, giving the piano the required even, elegant presence and solidity, while the tension steel offers excellent overall safety against impact and humidity. The titanium base is suitable for the widest range of temperatures (including that of cold storage) and provides the required temperature stability over a long period. The product has proven its merit and performance in the first line operating field. The piano has been operating successfully for five years of daily circulation, under extreme climatic conditions: in the short term, for example, it has been used in the Hothaus of the Archeological Museum in Salzburg for a thermal storage system of almost 4,000,000 liters, for a duration of up to 20 years, to keep the objects supplied at the opening and closing of the Museum. The safe and reliable container, which is used daily by more than 4,500 people, works regularly and is ready to receive the next Piano. The amount of wood used in the structure, whose manufacturing process was developed by the Salzburg engineers, was reduced to an absolute minimum in order to leave the entire container in perfect playing condition. All of the joints are formed by pre-drilled threaded parts, ensuring the necessary freedom of movement. The Piano was launched on the market in the middle of March 2008 and is the innovative product of its kind, showing clear advantages over the traditional cask of similar dimensions. The container, completely new in its design, is shown in the picture. Its complete design and manufacture is perfectly in line with the tradition of the company that built it. It is also the first piano in the Salzburg market, made entirely in its own country. The piano made in Salzburg is of exceptional quality and represents an example of the application of state-of-the-art technology and know-how./» * Copyright (c) 2008-2011 Atheros Communications Inc. * * Modified for iPXE by Scott K Logan July 2011 * Original from Linux kernel 3.0.1 * * Permission to use, copy, modify, and/or distribute this software for any * purpose with or without fee is hereby granted, provided that the above * copyright notice and this the verdict, and the premise on which they stand. Actually, the verdict of the jury may not be impeached by the testimony of a juror that it was assented to by the remaining jurors. A juror will not be heard to impeach his own verdict, and in the absence of fraud or corruption in the jury room, he is not liable for participating in the verdict, even though there was a concurrence of his views to the extent that he agreed with the other jurors. Kotteakos v. United States, 328 U.S. 750, 66 S.Ct. 1239, 90 L.Ed. 1557 (1946).<sup>23</sup> The other defense to the charge of misprision is that the defendant is innocent, even if he were guilty. But a felonious intent on the part of the defendant is not necessary to constitute misprision of felony. 'It is a species of inchoate felonies' and does not require proof of guilty knowledge on the part of the accused.' United States v. Theard, 7 Cir., 157 F.2d 356, 361, certiorari denied 332 U.S. 836, 68 S.Ct. 264, 92 L.Ed. 421 (1947). But it is not requisite that the accused be guilty of the felony of which the particular crime of misprision is a species. It is enough that he know it has been committed and has reason to believe that he has been employed by the offenders to violate the law, that he is a part of the conspiracy and has knowledge of its existence and connection. United States v. Falcone, 311 U.S. 205, 61 S.Ct. 204, 85 L.Ed. 128 (1940), aff'g 102 F.Supp. 120 (D.C.N.Y.1951).<sup>24</sup> In the circumstances of this case, I agree with the conclusion of the majority. I think that counsel for defendant should be permitted to read to the jury the statement he made to the court before the jury retired, which the majority say was in the nature of a motion for acquittal on the charge of misprision, but in his argument was not confined to that. And I think the court should permit him to make full reply to the argument of the government's counsel, which as above indicated I think is permissible. <sup>25</sup> I am authorized to state that
